Profile

Lim Suang is currently a Lecturer and Consultant (Data Science Practice) in NUS-ISS. He is also a Fellow of the Royal Statistical Society, an UK professional body for statisticians. Suang received his MSc in Statistics and BSc (Double Major in Mathematics and Political Science) from the National University of Singapore.

Suang started off his career in the Singapore Civil Service, working on a range of data-related projects in the Prime Minister's Office (PMO) and Ministry of Education (MOE), and obtained the Long Service Award in 2018. Subsequently, he joined the NUS School of Computing to teach undergraduate-level course on Computational Methods for Business Analytics and obtained the top faculty teaching award in 2019. Prior to joining NUS-ISS, Suang was the module coordinator for Business Statistics in the School of Mathematics & Science (MS) and leads Natural Language Processing-related (NLP) industry projects in Data Science & Analytic Centre (DSAC), Singapore Polytechnic.

Suang is interested in the field of Computational Social Science, particularly in the use of NLP techniques to solve real-world business problems.
